FROM THE DEAN

"When you learn, teach. When you get, give."—Dr. Maya Angelou.

I would like to thank all members for appointing me Dean of our wonderful organization.

This year's goal is to bring together a sense of community among our members and colleagues. Education is a broad term that covers our platform and principles. Educating oneself goes far beyond reading a book or receiving a diploma. We need to educate ourselves to understand our own prejudice and ignorance. The art of playing and appreciating the organ has stood the test of time. It has developed and evolved. The instrument of the organ, like humanity, consists of many shapes, sizes and personalities. We cannot ignore a person's talent or time because of one's instrument. Some organists may have the luxury of playing on a mighty and majestic 5 manual pipe or digital organ. Others may find themselves on a spinet or basic tubular organ. Those who often get overlooked are the theater organists. These are all acceptable organs and organists. The barrier that has been tarnishing our organization must be addressed to educate ourselves to form a sense of community. The organist defines the organ; the organ does not define the organist.

The American Guild of Organists needs you. You are wanted. You as a member can help out in so many ways such as inviting a guest regardless of the person's taste in organ music or position in the profession or hobby. You can volunteer, thus becoming a team member for an event. Your presence in any capacity at our workshops, recitals, and meetings is very important. We have many members but only a handful utilize the Guild's many resources. You can voice your thoughts. I will listen. We all share the appreciation of the organ. Take with you the quote above from Dr. Angelou and apply it every day for the rest of your life.

—Kevin

PROFESSIONAL NEWS

As many will have heard by now, Doug Marshall and David Ogletree have announced their retirement as of September 30, 2011, from their association with Rogers organs to concentrate on marketing their own digital organ developed several years ago, the Marshall & Ogletree organ, which has received considerable acclaim. The new organ has attracted such customers as Trinity Church, Wall Street, NYC and Ave Maria University in Florida. We wish them well on their new project and look forward to further news.

FROM THE MEMBERSHIP CHAIR

I am pleased to report that many of you have responded to my request for quick renewals. Now I need the rest of you to jump on the calliope wagon as well. (Wouldn't it be fun if we actually had one?)

Our mission statement says our Guild exists, in part, to provide a forum for mutual support, inspiration, and education. We want to be there for you when you are in need of this support and we need your help in supporting others as well. Please do your part as a professional and renew your membership today. Only then can we be a strong, supportive organization for each other and for the organ itself as its role in worship continues to evolve. Please continue to be a part of shaping this future.

—Doris Alberg

Election results. Dean: Kevin DiLorenzo; Sub-Dean: Joe Gama. In the absence of nominees for Member-at-large, Stephen Martorella asked for volunteers to “run.” Margaret Clark and Leilani Nixon agreed to serve and were also elected.

MEMBER MATTERS

Welcome to new members:

Kay Pease, assistant organist at Attleboro Covenant, 175 Chestnut Street, North Attleboro MA 02760; 774-254-3179; k.r.wing@gmail.com

Cheryl Duerr, director of music ministries at Attleboro Covenant and the head of The Concord Coaching Co. has joined RIAGO as a dual member. 267 Concord Ave., Lexington, MA 02421; 617-852-3533, cell 781-860-8893, work 508-226-6221; clduerr@gmail.com

Dennis Schmidt, D.M.A., 7 Leatherleaf Road, Narragansett RI 02882; 284-3958; dschmidtofbach@yahoo.com

Betty Nickerson continues to enjoy Washington state, her daughters, sons-in-law and twin grandsons! She misses the easy access to organ recitals out there. She must travel to Tacoma and Seattle to attend events. She sends greetings to all and would love to hear from 'the old-timers' who remember her. (See Betty's reminiscence on page 3.)

A MEMOIR OF MY MUSICAL LIFE

by BRIAN LARKIN

The following is excerpted from Brian Larkin's response to a request from his family and friends to share some of his wide-ranging recollections as an organist. Many readers will recall with him some of the people, events, and places that figure in his evolution from student to director of St. Dunstan's Summer School for Church Musicians. We thank him for sharing and hope to publish segments periodically.

—The Editor

I filled in playing organ for various people from time to time around Providence, almost always in an RC church. Hollis kept at me to use my skills elsewhere since the RC church was beginning to swing toward a liturgy that didn't appreciate a classical training. It was the early years after Vatican II when all kinds of music found its way into church. I had worked in Washington with Christina Brusselmans translating the Lucien Deiss Psalms into English and doing some transpositions to lower keys for the American audience. I had considerable time invested in the changing RC liturgical music scene so I resisted moving to the Protestant camp at first. Thinking about that Deiss project, all done in one summer – I can lay claim to at least two of the psalm settings that became somewhat popular: Keep in Mind and Priestly People.

I finally landed a job at St. Augustine's RC Church in Providence. It was a huge airplane hangar space with a lousy Baldwin electronic installed in the balcony. The thing hummed and popped but got the job done. I soon had a choir up and running with an experience level from none to some to expert. I can remember one rehearsal when we were working on Gounod's St. Cecilia Mass Sanctus. One particular sweet lady was having a tough time with an entry cue. I told her, "No, no—at this point you have a rest, THEN you come in. Let's try it again." So off we went and when the offending measure approached, the woman sat down. I stopped again and asked why she sat down. I didn't see it coming. She explained that I told her to "take a rest." So she sat!

Organs at in the late 1960s/ early 70s that I remember locally—the "Baldwiner" in St. Augustine's—'nuf said. I played there for a few years when Hollis Grant urged me to jump the fence and play for other denominations. I finally did after a particularly nasty confrontation with an out of control clergyman who would shout orders from the altar. I put up with it for a very short period and after speaking with the pastor a few times, departed the loft during a service. I think it was during Holy Week. Some wag told me I'd never get another job after storming out during a service. It was the best move I ever made because the best and most creatively rewarding jobs were to come.

RECOLLECTIONS

by BETTY NICKERSON, RIAGO DEAN 1978-1980

Upon request for her recollections, Betty writes:

I certainly have many GREAT memories of the RIAGO and my activities and the chapter members and the very special events enjoyed and worked on by all of us. I was Dean from 1978-80. State Chair: for 2 years at least at some point. Sometime, early '70s, Anna Fiore (at that time) reintroduced the AGO exams for our Chapter, the first time in 30 some years that exams had been held. I was one of the small group that took the Service Playing and passed. From there, the exams became a regular part of our chapter. It was hard work and a thrill to pass the CHM Exam. I traveled for each of the exam prep weekly classes from Narragansett to Barrington, about 45 miles one way. Barrington Congregational Church was the location of both Service Playing and Choir Master exams.

The 50th anniversary of the Chapter was another great event, celebrated in Grace Church. Ruth Laurent composed an anthem for the occasion. Combined choirs from members' churches performed. I was co-chair with Jim Trainor (or Trabbert?) of Newport.

Then of course in '85 was the huge Region I Convention with Rhode Island as host. How hard all of us worked to make that event a very memorable one. I co-chaired with Ron Turnquist.

How fortunate our chapter was and is to be located near historical, university, and seaside venues that have so many fine organs. It was one of the highest points of my life even though I believe I dropped five pounds during the week from just being on the go and trying to keep ahead of each event to be sure it would be taking place on time.

How easy it was to just sit here and get started. I could easily highlight a few memorable occasions but maybe that's for another time. I like to think of those years as a very special time - a small chapter with great dedicated people. I thank you for asking me.

—Betty

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ORGAN PEDAGOGY

The American Guild of Organists (AGO) and the Eastman School of Music are partnering to produce the 16th biennial AGO National Conference on Organ Pedagogy, November 10-13, 2011, in Rochester, N.Y. The conference will present the topic of organ improvisation through a variety of compositional techniques and styles. Complete information, including online registration, is available online. Early registration discounts are available through August 15.

David Heller, director of the AGO Committee on Continuing Professional Education says, "The City of Rochester and the Eastman School of Music, with its multiplicity of instruments and performing venues, will provide a superb setting in which to address the topic of improvisation from many different angles, providing information and resources that will be useful to all instructors of the organ at all levels of instruction."

The four-day conference will present master classes featuring students at a variety of levels, panel discussions addressing the teaching of improvisation, and sessions that will provide attendees with resource material in the pedagogy of improvisation. The keynote address, Why Is Improvisation So Difficult? will be given by Eastman faculty member William Porter.

Many internationally renowned organists and teachers working in the discipline of organ improvisation will be offering presentations, workshops and concerts. For further information, please visit <http://www.esm.rochester.edu/eroi/festival-2011.php> to register or contact EROI Festival Coordinator Annie Laver at 585-274-1564 or e-mail anne.laver@rochester.edu.
