FROM THE SUB-DEAN

CELEBRATING THE YEAR OF THE ORGAN—ORGAN SPECTACULAR

October was the featured month for the year-long international celebration of the organ with the Organ Spectacular—over 250 concerts of organ music worldwide—occurring on Sunday, October 19, 2008. For our Rhode Island chapter, the celebrations began Wednesday evening October 15 where an enthusiastic audience of over 200 souls greeted Nancy Nicholson, Phil Faraone, Jeff Allard, Leilani Nixon, and Kajsja Teitelbaum in a members' recital on the mighty Casavant at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul in Providence. Composers represented were Bach, Vierne, Dupré, Finnish composer Oskar Merikanto, and the Rhode Island premier of Stephen Paulos' Bliethely Breezing Along, composed especially for this year's celebrations. Stephen Martorella read the governor's proclamation, which was secured thanks to the efforts of Doris Alberg.

The festivities continued with the Organ Spectacular events for our chapter on Sunday, October 19. These included an afternoon recital at the Peacedale Congregational church by Jeff Allard and friends, which featured the Franck Third Chorale, among other pieces. There were two evening events, one at St. John's Episcopal Church in Providence, and the other at Pilgrim Lutheran in Warwick. The St. John's concert was played by Brink Bush, Diana Norton-Jackson, and Peter Krasinski and featured music of two Bachs (Johann Sebastian and Carl Philip Emmanuel), Four Pieces by Women composers Roberta Bitgood, Martha Sobaje, Diana Norton-Jackson, and Lani Smith, and concluded with Peter Krasinski's organ rendition of Elgar's Enigma Variations.

Kajsja Teitelbaum, one of our newer chapter members who recently arrived in the U.S. from Sweden, played to a full house at the Pilgrim Lutheran Church recital, which featured music from 6 countries: England (John Stanley), France (Jéhan Alain), Germany (Felix Mendelssohn), an anonymous chorale with variations from Norway, Sweden (Otto Olsson), and Finland (Oskar Merikanto). The Governor's Proclamation was again read at both the Providence and Warwick venues, and a citation from Providence Mayor David Cicilline honoring Brink Bush was also read.

There will be many more Year of the Organ events to come all the way through next July. Check your AGO newsletter for all of them, and don't miss the Rhode Island Philharmonic Community Orchestra with organist James F. Morgan performing Saint-Saëns "Organ" Symphony at St. Peter's-by-the-Sea in Narragansett on December 13.

Kudos to all who made these celebrations a huge success.

—Stephen

FROM THE EDUCATION COMMITTEE

NEW ORGANISTS SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM REVS UP

What clinched it for 10-year-old Gennifer Norman was hearing a live performance of a Bach Toccata and Fugue at age three. “For seven years now my favorite instrument has been the organ. I like it because of how many different sounds it can make and how loud it can be,” she says.

Gennifer is the first young organist to be awarded six organ lessons from RIAGO under the new audition program. She sailed through her audition with solid performances of Grieg’s “Puck,” Bach’s Invention in C, two hymns, and a sightreading piece. A piano student of William Wiant, Gennifer will study organ with Julie Tagen. Gennifer currently serves as organ assistant for Anne Dolbashian at the United Congregational Church of Middletown, and will use that organ for her practice.

“We’ve already received three applications since the audition program was announced in September,” reports coordinator Nancy Nicholson. “Two more piano students have expressed interest and intend to apply. We’re off to a great start!”

Nicholson urges RIAGO members to attend the next members program, “From the Piano Bench to the Organ Bench” at 3:00 pm, Sunday, November 2 at Mathewson Street United Methodist Church.

“I hope every RIAGO member personally contacts a piano teacher to invite to this program. We have so many good, practical ideas to share. The more that organists and piano teachers talk to one another, the more piano students will be encouraged by their teachers to study the organ. This is a win-win situation for everyone—organists, piano teachers and young people.”
